

pair069_T_s1.dot:

Injections of human stem cells seem to directly repair some of the damage caused by spinal cord injury , according to research that helped partially paralyzed mice walk again .