

pair748_T_s2.dot:

After the polio cases were identified , public health officials in the Dominican Republic and Haiti began giving the vaccines to large numbers of children . Public health officials now say the disease is under control and is not a public health threat .