

pair686_T_s2.dot:

Immediately after 1990 , however , Swedish fertility plummeted in another unique movement , and had fallen to 1.5 children per woman in 1998 and in 1999 . This is the lowest birth rate in Sweden ever - although above the European average .