

The German technology was employed to build Shanghai 's existing maglev line, the first in the world to be used commercially.